I am writing to thank you for the interest shown in the An Inspector Calls theatre trip. I'm sure that your child has told you that they have been successful at securing a tickets for this performance.

We met with your child during lunch time today to run through the organisation of the evening, however I would like to take the time to outline the final information that you may be require.

The performance itself takes place at York Theatre Royal on the 19th September. We shall meet students in the foyer at 7pm and students should go to their allocated teacher to register and collect their ticket; information about staffing and groups will be up in Reception at school so students must ensure they take the time to look at this and make a note of the teacher they need to register with. They must also ensure that they sit in their allocated seat for the duration of the performance.

As there will be other school groups in the audience, I ask that your child wears their school jumper, however the rest of the school uniform is not mandatory. The performance itself runs straight through, so there will be no interval. Therefore your child does not need any money and could I ask that they do not bring refreshments as these only cause a distraction.

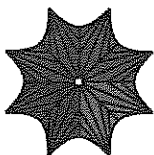

The performance itself is scheduled to finish at 9:15pm. As you can appreciate, your child's safety is our primary concern, therefore we will be asking adults to see the relevant member of staff and sign their child out. If you are collecting more than one child, please could you ensure that you sign all relevant students out so that we have accurate registers at the end of the evening.

I hope that your child enjoys the performance and thank you for your support.

Yours sincerely

Nicola Pugh
